Scott,

It appears my account which started at $25,000 is now worth less than $5,000:

As previously discussed, I await your response.

Dear Longleaf:

I agreed to try your trading/investment service for a year with an initial investment of $25,000. I have seen the account value diminish precariously over the last 12 months by roughly 90%, combining trade losses, fees and commissions.

Consequently, I would like you to sell all positions and liquidate assets. I will notify Midland to close my IRA before the end of January 2018.

Thank you.

Scott,

How long until my account goes to zero? Is it time to just close it?

Send me an email telling me what's been going on and why I should stay. No phone calls.

Craig,

I've been gone all day with a doctor's appointment and apparently you are still recommending trades. As per our telephone call yesterday, I thought I had made it perfectly clear that your performance has been nothing short of abysmal. So that there is no question effective January 29, 2018, (because I do not have written correspondence that predates this letter) DO NOT ENTER ME IN ANY FURTHER TRADES. I knew I should have written this down so I had a record of it. I also told you I would NOT recommend your brokerage firm to any of my friends especially if I wanted them to remain my friends.

Last Friday I told you I wished to end our association effective as of the end of the trades which expire February 9 2018. In a stock market that has seen most people make a fair amount of money, Long Leaf has managed to lose over half of my trading account. Never the less you keep sending me trade recommendations. Your "discounted" transaction fees of $25 per contract are over three times what other brokerage firms are charging. So even then you are making anywhere from $1000 to $1250 per trade.

I told Vince first then Jeremy, and finally you that this was fully one third of my retirement account and I needed a savvy investment advisor to help me make sure I would have enough to live on. Your assurances that we would do well now ring very hollow. Despite that and unfortunately for me, your firm made money and the advisors made money while I lost money in the biggest bull market in years. Your response was "It's been a tough year but we are doing things differently now."

I'm sorry it has come to this but despite my liking you personally, your trading acumen is sorely lacking which has resulted in my personal loss of over $30,000 and I am sure you will come up with some reason why I lose even money in our last trades. I request a 1099 form so that I have proof of my losses for tax purposes. With all the identity theft going on, please call me so I can provide the address. I do not relish sharing my personal information on the World Wide Web. I suggest Long Leaf Trading and I end our relationship.

Thank you.

Sincerely,
Dennis Nations

Scott,

That is one of the reasons I was brought in late last year. We are making some substantive changes in our processes and trading to address this. Unfortunately it is a little late for you.

Thanks, Jim. I am not sure if you know, but I went with every recommendation in 2017 and lost over $31,000 after having lost $9,000 from 2016.

Andrew,

I see my account has been sitting in cash for at least three months now.

As I told you, I think both over the phone, but definitely by email, this is a managed futures account which I opened after repeated "cold calls" soliciting my investment. I opened the account because I personally did not feel competent to make the trading decisions on these (not equity) market but wanted to be conservative and diversify my risk for safety (modern portfolio theory)--I want you (Longleaf) to make your best trading moves without my approval.

I do not want to lose money and would expect that over the long term you would make a net profit after commissions and fees and have more profitable trades than non-profitable ones.

I am willing to have the account sit in cash for long periods of time until you find trades that you have a high degree of confidence in.

However, I don't know if you are just waiting for "a good trading opportunity" or if you are simply doing nothing and hoping I will simply close the account and take the remaining cash from my original $25,000 investment back without any fuss or legal action or arbitration claims.

If the latter, then I would ask you to have someone at Longleaf review my account and confirm:

1. since opening the account, how many trades have been made in total?
2. how many trades have been profitable or net losses after commissions and fees?
3. how much Longleaf has earned in fees since I made my initial $25,000 investment.

I realize you were not the account executive for most of the time this account was consistently losing money.

I don't think it is unreasonable to ask for this information (and I assume your compliance department will read a copy of this email).

Thank you in advance for your assistance.

Yours truly,

Thomas J. Bates

In reviewing my statements I am reading you have lost about $50,000 in the time I have been with you. This is TOTALLY unacceptable and I want to know where the 78% winning rate has been all this time. You may want to pass this up the line as they need to pick BETTER MORE PROFITABLE trades, not just for trading but for PROFIT!! Larry G Rea

Alan,

What is happening is the big swing in bonds since the FOMC. We have two bond positions on and we have a lot of time on both. We are patiently watching to see what to recommend. Also I did make an error that I need to get back in your account. I have been under the weather most of the week but will try to get them in tomorrow. I will try to catch up with you early next week after I get over this

I just did a quick calculation of the loss in my account since it was opened last summer. It is down 68%, and down 38% since you (Jim) took over from Scott just a few months ago. You guys are doing a terrible job!

Scott, This has not been a fun ride. I am down over 50% and don't see any way to keep this up as I tried to go along with you with only one contract. Had it been three I would have been down $2100 in May instead of $700. Please close my account and send what is left ($12138.15) to me as soon as possible. I really tried to go along with your recommendations but it just is not working out. Guess I will stick with my slow and steady pace with equities. Dave Owens

Scott,

Do not make any further trades in my account. Please close all positions. It's pretty simple – I've lost 55% in the last year, and 46% since the end of 2017. Time to cut my losses and move on. I have attached a spreadsheet that should explain it.

Please do not call me; there's nothing to discuss.

Thanks,

Clint

Hello Scott:

Do NOT implement your firm's recommendations for further trades in my account. Since inception 6 months ago your firm's recommendations have led to a 35% decline in the value of my holdings. My remaining holdings include another disaster in silver futures. Conner Campo, my former account representative, had explained that managing the account was a team effort based on company analysts' recommendations; therefore there is no reason to believe that your performance will improve with a change in account rep.

When my current holdings expire I want you to close the account and return to me my the remaining funds.

I can pull this all together. Mostly it is our April trades when volume fell off the table in May.

Liliana,

Scott Gecas is your new broker. I will check your account and would recommend waiting until any open positions close. I will make a note on this account that it is to be closed once all positions are closed.

Dear Clients,

I am e-mailing you to inform you that Connor Campo has chosen to leave the firm. He has decided to trade on his own and we wish him well in that endeavor. He has been assisting us with the transfer of his accounts to our other brokers to assure a seamless transition. Your new broker will be contacting today to introduce himself.

If you have any questions or concerns, please do not hesitate to contact me directly.

Alexander, I left a voicemail for you this morning.

Looking forward to what Long Leaf has planned to make profits for me. I'm down ~ $10,000, and not happy about the loss as you can imagine. The strategy that was explained to me is there would be multiple trades made that would generate some wins and some losses, but overall gains. All I've seen over the past few months is losses.

Please continue to note rationale for trades in future recommendations as you did last week. Is that trade still good to make?

I do have time today for a conversation with Jim Donelson.

Thank you,
Brian

James,

I want what little money I have left sent back to me. Iâ€™ve told you weeks ago to stop trading. Now I need you to send what is left back to me. You guys have lost almost all of my money. This has been a horrible experience, I started with 10k and its down to just over 2k! What a total joke this is, how in the world can you lose so much money??? My 12 year old could have done better.

Hey Jim,

Alan Godwin emailed me concerned with his account. I drafted an email in response to his concern and the direction that we are now going with the new strategy. Did he receive commission credits as the refund? I'm assuming he did and just thought that it would be a direct refund to the account.

Thanks,
Alex

Subject: IMPORTANT: Please Review My Account

Hi Alex,

I have attached my account statement for 2018. On July 23, 2018 Long Leaf received over $28,000 from me. Within the past six months this account has dwindled down to below 14K (greater than 50% drop). Market surprises notwithstanding, you would have to admit that it is almost fatal to an account to lose 50% in 6 months. If this trend continues this account will be worthless in less than one year of activity.

I am considering freezing what is left just to protect it. I cannot move the IRA money until a year has lapsed, but if I need to protect what I have now I will take action.

Do you honestly see a way that you will be able to grow this account, or am I just waiting for the news that Long Leaf has driven my account into the ground while collecting hefty commissions all along the way?

I find this type of loss unacceptable, and I need to know now which way I am going to go with what I have left.

I should also mention again that right from the start there were two withdrawals of approximately $300 each from my account. I alerted Scott Gecas, who told me not to worry, that $300 of that would be returned after three months. Do you know what this was and why he told me it would be returned, but to my knowledge never was? Was this a "personal loan" he took from my account?

I am quite concerned about the way money has disappeared from my account, and I think this should be looked into more fully.

Please look at my account activity, and let me know if you have a plan to stop the bleeding. I have just about reached my loss limit with Long Leaf.

Thanks for your attention in this matter,

Alan Godwin

The key is we have time. Bonds are moving down today and when we see a clearer picture we may sell options to collect premium. There are also adjustments I need to put in but I have the same thing you had so today may not be the day.

Hey Jim,

I'm planning on responding with some of the information you gave us the other day. Anything else I should add?

Alex,

What is going on with this position? I'm down almost 50%. How much longer will this position keep dropping? I'm about ready to pull the plug on this right now no matter what.

Jim,

On the way back from supper tonight my wife said that she had recently read a magazine article that stated there were a lot of con men in the investment business. The article quoted one of these con artist as saying the quickest way to separate of man from his money is to promise him a great investment opportunity.

My wife then asked me how I knew that your business was legitimate and how much money was currently in the account. I had to duck and cover.

WOW! I would not want to be me right now. Oh...wait...I am me!

Back to feeling like I am in HELL! Let's try to fix this as fast as we can please.

Jerry
